Guy Fawkes Night

- also called Bonfire Night, or Firework Night
- celebrated on the 5th November
- People have parties, light bonfires and burn the figure of a “guy”.
- This figure represents Guy Fawkes, the leader of a group of men who tried to blow up the British House of Parliament in 1605. They wanted to replace protestant king James I with a catholic head of state.
- But ‘The Gunpowder Plot’ was discovered and G. Fawkes was arrested and executed.

- Bonfire Night, which is another name for this feast, was originally Protestant demonstrations against Roman Catholics (because Guy Fawkes was a Catholic) but now it is a good occasion for funny celebration.
